

- Today's Show
- Share Your Opinion
- Expert's Corner
- After-Care
- Montel on MS
- This Week
- Featured Promos

Today's Show

TWINS: IDENTICAL, BUT DIFFERENT

They may have been born identical...but today we'll meet some twins who say there has always been something inherently different about each other. Liana says that since the age of 3, she can remember her twin sister, Juanita saying that she wished she were a boy. As Juanita grew up, she never got over her desire to be a man. She hid her feelings for as long as she could from her family because of their strict religious upbringing. However the stress and depression locked inside of her, eventually led her to attempt suicide. Juanita felt she was trapped inside the wrong body and as time wore on, the feeling grew stronger. Today former identical twin sisters Liana and Juanita are now twin sister Liana and brother Juan. They'll share their story with us today. We'll also meet two identical twin sisters who grew up with similar interests, except for one. Dawn says when she was younger she always tried to be like her twin sister, Diana but as she got older she began to realize that she was attracted to other women. When Dawn was 19 she kissed her first girl and knew for sure that she was gay. Dawn and Diane will discuss their differences growing up and how their relationship as twins has grown. Dr. Harvey Kliman is a reproductive pathologist who will discuss some theories about why some identical twins are copies of each other and why some seem to be mirror-opposites. We'll also meet a pair of twins, Tamara and Adriana who were separated at birth but found each other by accident when they were in college. Despite growing up in separate homes, these twins have amazing similarities in personalities and preferences.

Today's Guests:

- Liana: Juan's identical twin sister who supports her brother's decision
- Tamara & Adriana: Identical twin sisters were separated at birth and adopted into different families but found each other when they were going to college
- Dawn & Diana: Identical twin sister who are similar in many ways except for their sexual preferences
- Juan: Born as an identical twin girl named Juanita, who always felt that she was meant to be a boy and is now going through the transgender process